

Summary of State Registration Laws Concerning Temporary and Permanent Residency by Adults

Note regarding this chart: This is a summary of certain sex offender registration laws applicable to temporary and permanent residence in United States jurisdictions, particularly short-term visits. This summary is not intended to provide legal advice and should not substitute for qualified legal advice. Because sex offender laws are frequently revised by legislatures and reviewed by courts, the most current version of the applicable laws should be consulted and can generally be found using the links provided. This summary does not include all laws that may apply to registrants in a particular state, such as travel reporting requirements, requirements to disclose internet identifiers, or special requirements applicable to employment or college enrollment.

Note regarding short-term visits to other states: As reflected below, very few states have registration laws specific to short-term visitors, such as those vacationing in the state or attending a graduation. In the absence of specific statutory provisions, the registration requirements applicable to visitors must be inferred. Most states’ registration requirements are triggered by the establishment of a “residence.” A “residence” can be either short-term or long-term, as defined by state law, and is typically established by spending a particular length of time in either the state and/or a particular address. In most cases, a visitor whose presence in the state is sufficient to establish a “residence” is required to register. When planning travel to a particular location for a short period of time, contact local law enforcement to verify their practice regarding the registration of short-term visitors.
